The Public Library

REPORT OF LIBRARY ACTIVITIES

The policy of the Board of trustees continues as in the past, to be that of the greatest possible service to the community at large. Work of the current year has been carried on as formerly, the main feature aside from the established library hours, being the maintenance of service to teachers and pupils.

It was thought wise to purchase a set of encyclopedia that would be available to teachers for use in the school-room. Accordingly the American Educator, a set of ten volumes, was purchased and the various volumes are being sent out in the school allotment of books.

With this set of books is included a quarterly loose-leaf service, with a special binder that keeps the encyclopedia strictly up to date. There is also a research privilege available to anyone upon application to the librarian. Data for themes or essays on practically any subject under the sun may be obtained free of charge through this service.

Suggestions or requests for purchase of books relative to teaching or for supplementary material will be welcomed from our teaching force and duly considered by the books committee.

In the past, minor book repairs have been handled by the librarian and major repairs made at the bindery. This year, thro the state-wide project of providing work for unemployed women, the trustees arranged for a worker to come to the library for a period of one week and make the major repairs. This was competently done with no expense to the library other than cost of materials with which to do the work. The bother and expense of packing and shipping books was thus eliminated. Not the least advantage of this plan is the knowledge of repair work gained, which will add to the librarian's scope of usefulness.

Through the present banking situation, known to all of you, special planning was made necessary this past year, as $67.78 of our funds, deposited with the Windsor County Trust Co. have been held in restricted account. That the board of trustees were not seriously handicapped by this restriction was due to the fact that the library was supplied with sufficient fuel for the year, and that no repairs on the building were necessary. Release of this account is promised in the near future, so the amount will doubtless be available to the trustees in planning the budget for the coming year.

A collection of books from the estate of the late Sidney Richardson, a former fellow townsman, was presented to the library this year and thro the will of Mr. Wallace Bugbee the library received a copy of the 3rd volume of the history of Woodstock, Conn. This book is considered by authorities a masterpiece in genealogical compilation.

Mrs. Katherine Ellis Barrett also sent us volumes for our shelves.

Patronage of the library has been good, 1992 registered visitors and 4898 volumes loaned to January 1st.

Respectfully submitted,

ESTHER K. BUGBEE,

Secretary of Board of Trustees.

Superintendent's Report

To the Cornish School Board:

I herewith submit my first annual report as your superintendent of schools.

Mr. Andrew P. Averill, your faithful and beloved superintendent for fourteen years, resigned because of ill health, and I was elected as superintendent of the new formed union consisting of Cornish, Unity, Charlestown, Acworth and Langdon. Officially I began work July 1, 1933, and I know little about your schools in addition to what I have observed since the opening in September.

Having no office force I have had little time to study the locations of homes, conditions and lengths of roads, and old records with which I hope to be more familiar later. I trust the Board and citizens will consider my report and suggestions in the light of this lack.

I found in your schools eight experienced teachers who had been reelected because of faithful work, and one able, enthusiastic young girl who had had no experience. We expect teachers to prepare carefully each lesson to be taught, to correct every error in the papers passed in, to help any and all pupils who have special difficulties, to play with the children at noon and recess, and to teach with vigor and kindness. Even with able teachers, when a few activities of a school are over emphasized due either to the teacher's enthusiasm or to outside pressure from the superintendent or public, other valuable activities are usually neglected. It is the even businesslike school where a variety of faithful tasks are done each day by modern methods without running to fads that helps to prepare the boys and girls for happy and successful lives. Music, art, play, letter-writing and other activities that prepare children for life on a high level should not be considered fads. One can make fads of such highly valuable subjects as spelling and arithmetic when their place and importance is over estimated.

Mrs. Z. L. Hasham, school nurse, has continued her excellent work. She has helped in many ways to keep the children well and strong. The State and Nation have furnished cod liver oil and milk for those who needed them. I wish that funds might be obtained to have a dental clinic.

CWA funds have been furnished to carry on work at the Chadbourne School. I wish that new funds might be obtained to finish that yard. The City School needs suitable play grounds and several of the buildings and grounds will need repairs soon. I realize that but little of this can be done each year, but we must also remember that there are but few better monuments that can be left to future generations by either a town or an individual than good school conditions.

I feel that it would be well to consolidate some of your schools. In few cases the pupils are so few and the schools so near together that it has become a question of how long the State will be willing to give full approval. Due to local conditions the South school was closed last November, and the pupils placed in the Town and Goward schools. For a time at least the Town, Goward, South, and perhaps the Centre schools could be made into two schools of 4 grades each. The Chadbourne and City Schools could be consolidated into two four grade rooms and take care of part of the pupils now attending at the Town and Centre schools. If the roads were better, the Dingleton Hill school could be divided between the City and Tracy Schools, but I fear that the weather and roads would block such a move. Perhaps any such a move would be bad on account of the travel, but the school-room work would be better.

I have been asked several times if Cornish could not maintain a high school. It could, but I can see in such a plan both advantages and disadvantages. If a consolidated plan was made for the lower grades, the same busses could bring the high school pupils to any place near the Town School where a suitable building could be found or built. I would advise that the seventh and eighth grades be united with the high school. That would make a school of about ninety pupils and give free transportation from all parts of the town except Dingleton Hill and the Tracy Districts.

One of the advantages would be that after the school was well started, the cost would be less than you are now paying for tuitions. The State would approve the costs of the seventh and eighth grades as a part of the elementary system. Another great advantage would be that Cornish young people would become a stronger active part of the social life of their own town.

The outstanding disadvantages are that pupils who have already begun work in other schools, especially juniors and seniors, would desire to finish their work where they are, and there would be a large initial cost for buildings, books, desks, and supplies. The first might be met by starting a school with the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grades, and pay tuitions for the eleventh and twelfth grades. Sometimes there are donations made to help start a new school.

I feel that the citizens of Cornish have been very kind to me during these first few months of my work with you, and that the teachers and pupils have been patient with me for errors in getting started. I wish to thank them, and to especially thank the Cornish School Board for their help and cooperation.

Respectfully submitted,
WALTER L. MASON,

Children were accompanied to the oculist and to the Tuberculosis clinic.

It is hoped that the large number of undernourished children will be helped through the hot noon lunches, the free milk and the cod liver oil which has been put in the schools for all the pupils to take.

There is great need of a dental clinic for the children of the Cornish Schools.
